Benefits of the Forum...

- Review a model ERM Policy
- Discuss additional insights into the various stress tests needed for a sound ERM program
- Form networking relationships with other bank risk officers
- Discuss with peers ways to approach their ERM process
- Discuss with peers and industry experts their views of sound risk management practices

The forum truly is designed to provide a platform for those institutions that have already begun building their ERM process as well as those that are working toward improving their internal risk management procedures. Our objective is to learn from regulators, industry experts, and, perhaps, most importantly from one another. We see Risk Management as a “non-competitive” industry issue that lends itself particularly well to information sharing and we expect our third year to be filled with such sharing as we continue to enhance management of those key risks.
